

Digging Deeper- Exploring Colleges and Training Institutions

Now it's time to get information about the education and training opportunities available for your chosen field. There are many resources that can assist you with finding training and apprenticeship programs that will get you started in your career. The links below will take you to some helpful sites.

Instructions

1. Begin by visiting the Be Pro Be Proud NC website at www.beprobeproudnc.org
2. Click on the Find Training tab at the top of the page. Many of the schools will have the information entered about the programs offered in your chosen field as well as estimated tuition and length of time required to complete the program. If it is not listed, just click on the link to the community college and search there for more information.
3. Click on the Resource tab to see if there are any apprenticeship or scholarships available.
4. Visit www.careeronestop.org/Toolkit and then click on Find Training to search for more options available in your field.
5. Visit www.apprenticeshipnc.com to find jobs and programs available in your area in your chosen field. You can also check www.apprenticeship.gov/apprenticeship-job-finder.
